1. Recruitment and Selection of Candidates

Workforce agencies work with employers to source and screen candidates to find the best fit for the job. Once candidates are identified, the agency conducts interviews and assessments to ensure they meet the job requirements and have the necessary qualifications.

3. Placement of Candidates in Suitable Jobs

The agency handles the placement process and negotiate the terms of employment, managing payroll and benefits, and ensuring legal compliance with labour laws and regulations.

4. Visa and Immigration Services

For employers who require foreign workers, manpower agencies can provide visa and immigration services to help navigate the complex process of bringing foreign workers into the country. This can include assistance with visa applications, work permits, and other legal requirements.
